

HEAR FROM OLIVER WYMAN CASE COMPETITION PARTICIPANTS

“ I participated OW case competition in 2018 and now I am a finalist team coach. The process of the competition closely resembled real consulting projects. From brainstorming with team members to dividing tasks and conducting research, to refining perspectives, clarifying storylines, and forming final solutions, the entire process was challenging yet fulfilling, further solidifying my interest in consulting work.”

“What set this competition apart was the dynamic format of the final presentation, where judges could pose questions at any moment. This added an element of unpredictability and sharpened our ability to handle unforeseen circumstances with composure and strategic problem-solving.”

“ What made the experience even more special was when one of the judges, a management representative from a major player in the industry, discussed the possibility of implementing our ideas in detail. This discussion made us feel that our ideas were being seriously considered and appreciated, which was incredibly motivating.”
